Introduction

The present catalogue, listing 27 incunabula and 272 sixteenth century books, supplements A Catalogue of Incunabula and Manuscripts in the Army Medical Library (1950), prepared by Dr. Dorothy M. Schullian, and A Catalogue of Sixteenth Century Printed Books in the National Library of Medicine (1967), compiled by Richard J. Durling. Representing works acquired since the publication of those catalogues, it testifies to the Library's continuing program for augmenting the nation's resources for bibliography and scholarship in historical as well as current medicine.

Among the incunabula, particular attention may be drawn to three items which are not listed in Goff's Census. These are two almanacs (numbers 2 and 20) and Stephanus Arlandi's Commentum super Nicolaum, Barcelona, 1490 (number 27). One other copy of the last has been traced, in the University of Barcelona, but it has only recently been brought to the attention of medical bibliographers.

The newly acquired sixteenth century imprints bring added strength to the Library's holdings of such well known authors as Girolamo Fracastoro, Leonhart Fuchs, Konrad Gesner, Paracelsus, and Ambroise Paré. Of particular interest to some will be the Apologia of Jacques Douynet, containing observations on arthritis by Jean Fernel (taken from his Consilia), which is unrecorded in Sherrington's bibliography. Others will note the substantial number of vernacular imprints, especially in German, the emphasis on plague, or the collection of rare Basel theses.

In general, rules of entry and description follow those employed in the Catalogue of Sixteenth Century Printed Books. In several instances this has necessitated changing the form of entry used for incunabula by Dr. Schullian. This was deemed the lesser of two evils, since it will make possible the integration of records of fifteenth century books into the Library's card catalogue and other files. The supplementary catalogue of incunabula includes a number of works traditionally placed in this category in standard bibliographies, even though later scholarship has shown that they were printed after 1500. Cross references to these have been provided in the sixteenth century section. Finally, users should be warned that cross references from alternate forms of an author's name to the form established here have been omitted if they already appear in the sixteenth century catalogue.

Appended are two other poems by Theodoricus Ulsenius, the first an elegy on his friend, Adolf Occo the elder, who died on July 24, 1503 (p. [15-18] and the second entitled “Cura morbi francici” (p. [19])

Concerning the elegy on Occo and the probable imprint date, cf. Brian Lawn, The Salernitan questions, Oxford, 1963, p. 118 and note 6.

The Latin version of the Hippocratic epistle has incipit: Quod suspicati sumus illud nimirum Damagete fuit . . . It is the same as that ascribed to Rinutius (usually identified as Rinuccio d’ Arezzo) in several 15th-century manuscripts containing the Epistolae (cf. Hermann Diels, Die Handschriften der antiken Ärzte, Berlin, 1905-06, 1. Teil, p. 38) and in the collection of epistolae of Diogenes, Brutus, and Hippocrates first printed in Florence in 1487.

Edited by Hieronymus Surianus. A note by him on leaf 73<sup>r</sup> refers to previous works he has prepared for the press, including the second edition of Galenus' collected works, just published. This reference to the 1502 edition printed by Bernardinus Benalius provides new evidence for dating the above edition. The colophon mentions Leonardo Loredano, Doge from 1501 to 1520, as noted by Stillwell.

[20], 57, [4] ll. incl. plates. 32 cm. [111]

Imperfect: margins trimmed affecting foliation and side-notes.

Title page engraving and 13 full-page plates (leaves [7-20] with caption title: Het tresoor, ofte der versamelinge vande instrumenten der chirurgie) are, except for omission of the English legends, similar to those in the English translation, also published at Dordrecht in 1598 by the same publisher. They are apparently based on those of the original French edition of 1594, published in Paris.

Dedication signed: Maximiliaen Bouman
